INTOUCH SOLUTIONS PROMOTES MULTIPLE KANSAS CITY EMPLOYEES

KANSAS CITY (July 30, 2015) – Intouch Solutions proudly announces the promotion of eleven employees in its Overland Park, Kan., office. A leading marketing agency serving the pharmaceutical industry, Intouch Solutions has seen rapid expansion over the past five years and actively promotes within the 650-person firm.

The eleven employees include:

Paige Carrier, senior account manager, has been with Intouch for more than five years and during that time has worked to grow and develop the company's business and brand. Formerly an account manager, Carrier skillfully managed client relationships, project execution and complex finance sheets. She remains the go-to expert on her team for submission processes and detail-orientated initiatives. In her new role, Carrier will serve as the primary contact for her clients and agency partners, lead project execution, and act as a day-to-day support on larger strategic efforts.

Brandon Gregory, front-end web architect, began working at Intouch in January 2014 as a contractor and converted to a full-time employee just six months later. Formerly a senior front-end developer, Gregory has displayed a strong technical foundation and a knack for education and mentorship, making him a natural fit for his new role. As a front-end web architect, Gregory will focus on front-end web development standards, training, and providing high-level work on larger projects. Additionally, he is responsible for maintaining internal properties like the company's website.

Matt Dunn, associate director, business systems analysis, joined Intouch in June 2012. Since then, he has provided tremendous value to the company's website and custom application and eCRM efforts. Dunn's business and technology background have allowed him to play a vital role in aligning industry best practices and solutions and demonstrating strong analytical skills and thought leadership across all client project assignments. Previously a senior business systems analyst, Dunn will continue to drive the growth of the business systems analysis team in his new role, as well as manage policy and standards for the team's function at Intouch.

Dani Berger, account director, has been with the company since February 2013, starting as an account manager and moving to account supervisor one year later. In her new role as account director, Berger will be responsible for helping to organize, grow and develop the team. She will also serve as a direct line to her clients, managing their business and maintaining strong relationships with them.

Josh Parker, senior account manager, first started at Intouch as an intern in June 2010 and over the past four years has taken on new roles by showing his ability to build relationships with clients, partner agencies and internal teams. Formerly an account manager, Parker has been a key member supporting the company's New York office and has always demonstrated strong skills, dependability and a positive attitude. As a senior account manager, Parker will build and maintain client relationships and work strategically to grow and develop Intouch's business and brand. He will also oversee project execution and coach his direct reports on scoping, billing and managing processes.

Rebecca Kurtz, account director, began working at Intouch in November 2011. Since joining the company, she has demonstrated a positive attitude and exceptional performance. Formerly an account supervisor, Kurtz earned the trust and respect of all those who work with her. As an account director, she will provide strategic leadership in developing and overseeing strategic and tactical interactive marketing plans for clients. Kurtz will also manage the development of campaigns and project plans.

Celeste Roberts, account director, started at Intouch more than two years ago and has since become a key contributor to all the accounts and brands that have crossed her desk. Formerly an account supervisor, both clients and agency partners have praised Roberts' ability to seamlessly manage accounts, bring strong ideas forward and serve as a strategic partner. In her new role, Roberts' core responsibility will be leading her team and ensuring the client receives results exceeding their expectations.

Sahar Ejaz, senior account manager, has been with Intouch since February 2013 and, in that time, has successfully managed a variety of highly technical projects, from patient programs to mobile apps and webinars, and everything in between. Formerly an account manager, Ejaz offers a unique perspective to the team and has a great knowledge and understanding of the evolving digital and technical landscape. Her creative, analytical and detail-oriented mind-set make her an ideal fit for her new role. As a senior account manager, Ejaz will build and strengthen client relationships, focus on strategic planning, and lead the development of numerous digital campaigns that address client objectives in a timely and collaborative way.

Lacie Worrell, account manager, joined Intouch in March 2013 as an account administrator. Since then, Worrell has obtained many great accomplishments, including being the lead client contact for a major account. She has exemplified what it means to be hard-working and organized and is always ready to take on any task that comes her way. She is known to her teammates as the glue that holds them all together. In her new role as account manager, Worrell will continue to lead her team in addition to overseeing and supporting various projects.

Megan Huey, account manager, has showcased her dependable, intuitive and detail-oriented nature over the last year and half she has been at Intouch. Previously an account administrator, Huey has been a true leader and served as an active force of driving change, scheduling working sessions and facilitating internal efforts. She also worked closely with the New York office to ensure they were integrated into internal processes. As an account manager, Huey will operate as the project owner for a portion of the projects her team works on. She will also be responsible for project advancement, running project meetings, co-running client meetings, and staying within budgets and timelines.

Jennifer Tate, senior marketing analyst, has been a vital member of the Intouch team for more than two and a half years. Starting as a marketing analyst, Tate has experienced the joys and growing pains of working across multiple brands. She has excelled at client service, providing high-quality deliverables across many accounts. As a senior marketing analyst, Tate will continue to provide exceptional support to existing and new clients. She will also be analyzing data, providing meaningful insights and developing actionable recommendations in an effort to optimize website performance and marketing programs for clients.
